Reflections from the Board

Betsy Brand,
LAYC Board Chair

In an interview with Betsy, she shared highlights of the past year as LAYC continues to stand for our region's underserved communities.

What stands out to you among LAYC's accomplishments from this past year?

I would say the ongoing adaptation to the changed world as a result of COVID-19 and other social changes. We have ensured that our youth and families continue receiving the services they need despite the challenges we all faced. The team has been remarkably adaptable, flexible and creative in order to make this happen.

One specific standout I'd like to mention: The Promotor Pathway research and the power of the model. The Pathway research is illustrative of how serious LAYC is about learning from our own youth and teaching new generations lessons learned. It was powerful to hear alumni of eight-some years come back and speak about the impact of their program. You don't often see such long-term, tangible results.

From last year to this year, what have you seen as a specific example of our growth?

I would say the mental health services and supports that we have continued to offer amid the increased need in our youth population. This service has grown and we have gotten better at it, adapting to fit the situation but never faltering.

How do you see LAYC's role in terms of rebuilding a sense of community in a post-COVID, socially-tense world?

Building community has been a part of LAYC's DNA since day one; we have always sought to offer a safe space for youth and families to connect as a community. We have increased our focus on equity and making sure everyone feels like they have a place.

Returning to face to face programming is critical for our work, and we have done it safely and strategically. It feels like coming home.

Can you build on the idea of emphasizing equity this past year?

From the very beginning LAYC has been about caring for individuals who are marginalized and/or feel alone. We have always offered services to kids who sometimes don't have the opportunity to get these services anywhere else.

This past year there have been terrible pressures on LGBTQ youth, Black and brown communities, and the immigrant community. It is essential that these communities continue knowing that LAYC is there for them and always will be.

How do you feel the Board has stepped up in this past year?

We have continued to support in a financial role. The finance committee has worked closely with the CFO to ensure stability for the organization. The DEI (Diversity, Equity and Inclusion) committee on the board has been critical in identifying ways for the organization to enhance its inclusivity.

Can you identify one precise moment this year that made you proud to be associated with LAYC?

I was amazed at the end-of-year highlight video that showed all the events we put on. This was really impressive, and I had no idea how impactful this year was until I saw everything in one place.

Any message for the LAYC staff and team?

On behalf of the Board, we want to thank Lupi for her steady hand during trying times. She was an amazing leader before, but leading during the pandemic and guiding us through it, alongside her senior team and the entire staff, was nothing short of amazing.

What do you want to ask of the Gala attendees?

Give, give, GIVE - any way that you can, whether it be a donation, volunteering your time, or creating a partnership."

¡Bienvenidos!

A Chat with Lupi Quinteros-Grady, President & CEO

What stands out to you among LAYC's accomplishments from this past year?

I am so proud of all that we accomplished for our youth and community. The standouts for us are about how our team stayed connected and maintained our program standards despite difficult decisions and program growth.

We had to evolve a storied housing program into the Esperanza Program for unaccompanied children. I'm excited to see our team train and prepare to greet the unaccompanied children through this program funded by the Office of Refugee Resettlement. Our team will be ready with open arms.

We also expanded our AmeriCorps program through an award from the US Corporation for National and Community Service. As a result, LAYC can create more opportunities for young people to be part of the solution for public health challenges in our community. Previously, our AmeriCorps members focused on our out-of-school education programs in DC and Maryland. In the aftermath of COVID-19, as we responded and collaborated with government partners and local organizations on vaccines and health education, we applied to AmeriCorps' national Public Health initiative to ensure we supported long-term recovery. This award is not only a testament to LAYC's work in public health to date, but opens doors for our youth to become community health providers.

What is LAYC's role in rebuilding community moving forward?

We want to continue building an organization of people who are inspired to serve and connected to the idea of rebuilding community. We want an organization that looks like the people we serve. We are on the ground working with the trust we have built with our youth, partners, and supporters. Thanks to earned community trust, we can build a transformative organization.

What is the role of the Gala attendees?

We need you to understand the work before us and to help us rise to the challenge. In light of the workforce being affected by the pandemic, continue to help us attract bright, motivated people who understand the service gaps in our community and want to have a transformative impact on our youth.

What are your biggest "wish list" items that donations would support?

It would be so encouraging if we could enrich the content of our summer programs by offering broader professional development opportunities and field trips. The summer is my favorite time of year and we strive to provide opportunities that help our young people stay engaged, make connections, and feel positive about their future.

Can you describe one moment this year that made you proud to be the leader of LAYC?

During a GED (Graduate Equivalency Degree) ceremony for Montgomery County, I felt immeasurably proud when a parent told me they were overwhelmed to see their child obtain their diploma. The parent was grateful for LAYC's message that their child has limitless potential. The parents hadn't heard that message about their child before. Community impact is often hard to measure, but this was a tangible, rewarding response that illustrates how we empower our youth and their families.

Anything you want to say to the LAYC staff?

It might seem basic, but thank you for showing up and being present for our young people, caring for them, and helping to create that magical space for youth. Do not lose sight of the impact that you have. You help lift the community and nurture in ways - seen and unseen.

Any closing thoughts?

Our work would be impossible without our partners: individuals, foundations, corporations, governments and nonprofits. It is impressive for any organization to remain standing through recent challenges and we are standing STRONG. The goodness and the belief of so many people is what keeps us going. Thank you so much for your support and showing up for our youth.

Thanks to

The Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation
and Julie Jensen for your outstanding dedication to supporting our youth and their families.

Tonight's Emcee: Vee Solomon

Vee Solomon is an attorney, budding author, wife, and a devoted full-time mother of two children, Wesley and Christopher Solomon. She has over a decade of legal experience in large law firms, non-profit associations, and corporate legal departments. She is devoted to charitable causes including the Chronic Illness Foundation of America, IDEALS Fund-a-Scholar, and the Salvation Army's Grate Patrol. She also partners with several organizations aimed at helping chronically ill Americans thrive amidst long-term health challenges and rare diseases.

Mrs. Solomon grew up in the historic Capitol Hill neighborhood of Washington, DC, completing her primary education in parochial school and the District of Columbia Public School system. Throughout her childhood, she worked for her farmer-turned-entrepreneur father in a family-owned and -operated chain of cleaners and laundromats. She served in various capacities at the historic H Street locations in Washington, DC, until her family divested from the business during her high school years. Her dreams of becoming a lawyer and entrepreneur developed in high school during her work as an intern at the Federal Emergency Management Agency Office of the General Counsel's Office. She is a magna cum laude graduate of the University of North Carolina and she earned her Juris Doctorate from The Catholic University of America Columbus School of Law, where she served as president of her 1L class and of her Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Mrs. Solomon has served in numerous leadership positions involving domestic violence awareness and literacy, and shaping the minds and dreams of young people in DC. Most recently, she served as co-chair of the IDEALS Fund-a-Scholar campaign, raising funds for socio-economic access for deserving scholars at St. Patrick's Episcopal Day School. Her passions lie in giving a voice to those facing illness and helping mentor youth in the areas of professional development, fiscal, and civil responsibility. She has been a tireless fundraiser and volunteer advocate for youth programs, including supporting LAYC's food distribution efforts.

Tonight's Honoree: Julie Jensen

Arlene Kogod Philanthropic Legacy Award Presented annually to selfless individuals whose commitment to improving the lives of young people never falters.

Julie Jensen grew up on a farm in Iowa, one of five siblings in a family committed to community involvement. She has memories of her parents going to all the children's games and volunteering regularly. Her parents were very influential on her philanthropy, teaching her that opening one's eyes to see what others might need will allow one to find a solution and make the world better. In college she studied biology and ecology, before surprising everyone with her decision to go to law school. She finished her formal education with a Master of Law in taxation.

Following law school, Julie pursued a short-lived political career before transitioning back to law and continuing her volunteer work. After the death of her husband, she returned to working in the family business: an opportunity to work closely with her family's foundation and empower non-profit organizations to deliver transformational results for their communities.

She became involved with LAYC in 1998, and still loves working with everyone there. Beyond LAYC, she has worked with Youth Radio Media, Youth Communications, Washington

Area Women's Foundation and the Campaign for Youth Justice.

Julie understands the inequities that persist for our youth and families and understands the impact of her support. Whether it be accessing food, earning their GED, participating in arts and media classes, or receiving wrap-around services, our youth and families have received enthusiastic support from Julie Jensen. During the pandemic, Julie attended several online youth celebrations and engaged with our young people to celebrate their hard-earned achievements.

*“During my transition,
I was grateful to have people like Julie Jensen to believe in my leadership and vision of the organization”
- Lupi Quinteros-Grady*

Tonight we honor and recognize Julie Jensen with the Arlene Kogod Philanthropic Legacy Award. This award, established last year and given to namesake Arlene Kogod, recognizes selfless individuals who are committed to improving the lives of youth in our nation's Capital.

Julie's support over the years has laid the foundation and provided infrastructure support for us to rebuild our communities.

Thank you Julie for all your support throughout many years!

Thank you Julie Jensen, for your decades of support for LAYC!

Tonight's Honoree:

The Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation

The Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation is a shining example of the power of philanthropy to create positive change in our communities. For over 70 years, the Cafritz Foundation has been a beacon of hope for young people and their families throughout the DC-metropolitan area.

Founded in 1948 by Morris Cafritz and his wife Gwendolyn, the Foundation has always been guided by a deep commitment to improving the quality of life for residents of the Washington, DC area. From its earliest days, the Foundation has focused on supporting nonprofit organizations working on the front lines to address critical social issues, such as affordable housing, education, and health care.

Calvin Cafritz became the Foundation's Chair in 1989 and served as President and CEO of the Foundation from 1993 until 2022, when he stepped into the Emeritus role. Since Mr. Cafritz's leadership began, the Foundation has awarded more than $454 million to 10,433 projects to uplift our communities. Jane Cafritz currently serves as Chair, President and CEO of the Foundation.

Through its tireless work, The Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation has become a trusted partner and ally to countless organizations in our region. For LAYC, this partnership has empowered and sustained our critical efforts to prepare our young people to successfully transition into adulthood. The Cafritz Foundation has always been willing to support innovative, never-before-done projects that pave the way for transformative new opportunities for our youth. Their steadfast vision has successfully realized pivotal projects for LAYC, such as the Bard College credit program and the support of the Kaplan Building.

From their earliest electronic records from 1970, the Foundation has awarded more than $507 million dollars in grants; in the last 10 years, the Foundation has awarded $194 million to more than 985 organizations in the areas of community services, arts and humanities, education, health, and environmental conservation and care. Today, The Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation continues to be a force for good in our communities and beyond. Their unwavering commitment to social justice and equity is an inspiration to us all, and a reminder that, through philanthropy and collective action, we can build a brighter and more just future for all.

"You've been a foundation we can count on, that understands the needs of the community and the challenges that nonprofits face. You value nonprofits as the experts and are willing to be flexible with your funding. You have and will continue to be ahead of your time."

Thank you LAYC for helping keep our community, youth and families strong.

WHY WE LOVE LAYC Meg & John Hauge

"Sometimes all you hear about is the hate but there is more love in this world than you could possible imagine."

The Horse

"The Boy, the Mole, the Fox and the Horse" by Charlie Mackesy (my favorite read) explores many different emotions: courage, love, truth, fear & especially kindness

LAYC exemplifies the best of these. It helps people of all ages with a wide range of challenges. LAYC provide SOLUTIONS in areas of education, healthcare, finances and acceptance.

That is why we love this organization &
strongly encourage you to support it!

"Always remember you matter, you're important and you are loved, and you bring to this world things no one else can."

The Horse

So many years of great work in our communities that impacts so many youth.

Thank you!

Item #902 - Chesapeake Sail Experience

Are you ready to set sail on the Chesapeake Bay? You can bid on a sailing adventure aboard SLY! This opportunity is perfect for beginners and experienced sailors alike and starts in Annapolis, Maryland. The boat is subject to waves and heeling motion and you should be in decent physical condition to hold yourself steady. Dress appropriately, as weather is a consideration and subject to change, while the boat is prepared for heavy conditions, we will reschedule if the weather looks rough. The boat has a head and comfort features below deck and will offer light snacks and drinks. It is actively racing and the schedule will be mutually agreed upon, the offer expires at the end of September 2023. After you set sail, enjoy lunch or dinner with your loved ones at the Boatyard Bar and Grill in Annapolis.
